Needs statement

Updating practicing physicians and other health professionals in both the diagnosis and management of gastrointestinal and liver diseases/conditions is essential to providing quality care leading to improved patient outcomes. This activity is designed to increase knowledge, improve competence and enhance performance of the physician learners in practice to ultimately better patient care and outcomes in gastroenterology.

Target audience

Gastroenterologists, hepatologists, internists, primary care physicians, nurses, nurse practitioners, physician assistants, fellows, medical trainees and students in the field of Gastroenterology.

Learning objectives

At the conclusion of the conference, participants should be able to:

- Identify selected new diagnostic tools, new drugs and treatment strategies in inflammatory bowel disease.
- Summarize current management of exocrine pancreatic insufficiency (EPI) and key recent updates.
- Improve competency in the evaluation and management of post-surgical dysphagia and ostomy-related complications in patients with prior gastrointestinal surgeries.
- Summarize updated gastroenterology and hepatology guidelines related to bowel preparation, cirrhosis associated malnutrition and perioperative risk, GI manifestations of hypermobile Ehlers Danlos syndrome and preventive and pharmacologic strategies for IBD/Crohn's disease.
- Apply a multidisciplinary approach to the care of patients with GI Bleeding and acute pancreatitis.
- Apply ethical, patient centered strategies to effectively engage and support individuals who exhibit medical mistrust.

Educational methods

Lecture, question & answer session and panel discussion

Activity evaluation

Evaluation by questionnaire will address program content, presentation and possible bias.
